different views of the festive season: one negative in view of the season's increasing commercialisation, and one positive, which told of long-term advance planning, anticipation of the decorations, family get-togethers, gifts, best clothes, glitz and glitter.

Business:.

There being no business to discuss this month, members' contributions were put forward.

Readings:

The topic 'December Holidays' took the form of personal essays.

Zinat's contribution, December Holidays, was couched in the third person, and told of two Rose's essay, That Time of the Year, looked at family relationships, also with family get-togethers, and a time to mend fences or reminisce about loved ones who were no longer there.

Mer's piece was off-topic, an excerpt from a novel she is writing entitled Fern and Charles. It is based on her work in law enforcement, and tells of two detectives leaving a crime scene and their reactions to the event.

A lively discussion followed each submission.
